RAPE

Weapon of Terror

This page is intentionally left blank

RAPE

Weapon of Terror

Sharon Frederick and
The Aware Committee on Rape

Published by

Global Publishing Co. Inc.
1060 Main Street, River Edge
NJ 07661, USA

RAPE: WEAPON OF TERROR

Copyright © 2001 by Global Publishing Co. Inc.

All rights reserved. This book, or parts thereof, may not be reproduced in any form or by any means, electronic or mechanical, including photocopying, recording or any information storage and retrieval system now known or to be invented, without written permission from the Publisher.

For photocopying of material in this volume, please pay a copying fee through the Copyright Clearance Center, Inc., 222 Rosewood Drive, Danvers, MA 01923, USA. In this case permission to photocopy is not required from the publisher.

ISBN 1-879771-53-5

Printed in Singapore by World Scientific Printers

This book is dedicated to all victims of rape past, present and future. It is also dedicated to the memory of Dorothy Cheung, who helped inspire the writing of this book as a founding member of the AWARE committee on rape.

This page is intentionally left blank

FOREWORD

The human, social and economic cost of gender-based violence is incalculable. Transcending boundaries of nationality, culture, religion and socioeconomic status, violence against women and girls in its different manifestations plagues every society through harmful consequences to women's physical and emotional health, loss of self-esteem, and as a leading cause of death of women through murder and suicide. Affecting the capacity of over half the world's population to freely and fully participate in the development process, violence against women and girls carries exorbitant social and economic costs that have yet to be fully and accurately assessed.

The issue of violence against women has brought some of the century's greatest challenges, but also some of the most powerful victories for human rights that have served to place violence against women onto the international agenda as a human rights and a development concern of the highest priority. The United Nations Development Fund for Women (UNIFEM) supports innovative initiatives worldwide to combat all forms of violence against women, including domestic violence, sexual violence and harassment in the school and in the workplace, rape and sexual slavery in the context of war, trafficking in women across borders, as well as violence associated with traditional practices.

I commend the Association of Women for Action and Research (AWARE) for their initiative to publish the book Rape: Weapon of Terror. This book promises to serve as a tool for advancing the goal of eliminating violence against women, especially in the context of situations of war and civil conflict. The use of gender-based violence, including rape and forced pregnancy, is increasingly a horrifying feature of war in ethnic conflicts. As more and more women and girls are abducted by warring groups, displaced from their homes and communities, and threatened with deadly diseases such as HIV/AIDS, they are at the same time called upon to assume wider responsibility for holding their communities together, taking new leadership roles and often sustaining their families single-handedly. All of these experiences have brought home to many women the vivid links between violence, poverty and inequality. They see clearly the continuum of conflict that stretches from the beating at home to the rape on the street to the killing on the battlefield.

This new book serves to broaden our knowledge and understanding of gender-based violence as a weapon of war. At the same time it also highlights the need for effective intervention in the area of peace building and conflict resolution. There is a need to find common ground between civil societies and states, the United Nations system and business communities so as to rebuild institutions and capacities, and to bring international agreements and treaties to bear upon the operation of economic and political systems.

Noeleen Heyzer
Executive Director, UNIFEM

CONTENTS

Foreword	vii
Introduction	1
Civilian targets of war	4
Rape in the eyes of the law	6
Lessons from the Past	10
Women as property, banner and booty	12
Foundations for today: Rape as a crime against honour	13
World War I: Rape as a tool of terror and propaganda	14
World War II in Europe: Establishing a master race	16
World War II in Asia: Widespread sexual atrocities	18
Violence on Three Continents	25
Haiti: No punishment, no progress	25
Civilians fair game for military	27
Bosnia: Broadcasting atrocities	30
“Ram” Plan: Assault the most vulnerable	33
Brutality, humiliation, torture	36
Rwanda: 100 days of atrocities	38
As many killers as victims	40
Alive but dying	41
Assaults in Asia	46
Afghanistan: Resistance groups versus civilians	48

Rape to intimidate, punish and reward	50
Sex slaves and prostitutes	52
Myanmar: Repressive military regime	53
Minorities as enemies	55
Kashmir: Claimed by two nations	58
Brutality on all sides	60
Rape to humiliate the community	62
Indonesia: A History of Control and Corruption	66
Aceh: Fiercely independent	69
East Timor: Decades of military control	73
Irian Jaya: Often overlooked troublespot	78
Jakarta: Targeting ethnic Chinese	80
Where We Are, What We Can Do	86
Why sexual assault?	87
The horrible consequences of rape	89
Violence begets action — finally	91
Sometimes yes, sometimes no	93
Where to go from here?	96
5 things that you can do now	97
5 things that your country should do...and you should lobby for	98
5 things that the international community should do	98
Appendix	101
Epilogue: The AWARE Committee on Rape	117

RAPE

Weapon of Terror