THE SINGAPORE ECONOMIC REVIEW Special Issue on China's Economy: Challenges and Development in the Future

The Singapore Economic Review will publish a special issue on China's Economy: Challenges and Development in the Future.

Guest Editor

Jr-Tsung Huang (National Chengchi University)

Synopsis and Subject Coverage

After 40 years of reform, China has successfully developed her economy, the second-largest in the world after the USA. It is about time to review the process of China's economic development in the past 40 years and to investigate the possibility of sustainable development of China's economic growth in the future. The Singapore Economic Review will publish a special issue to shed light on challenges and development of China's economy in the future. We would like to broadly invite researchers to submit original micro- and macro-level studies related to China's economy to this special issue. Prospective topics in this special issue should be relevant but NOT limited to the following:

Consumer Economics	Industrial Economics
Demography/ Population Economics	Institutional Economics
Development Economics	International Economics
Educational Economics	Labor Economics
Environment Economics	Monetary Economics
Family Economics	Public Economics/Taxation
Financial Economics	Real Estate Economics
Gender Economics	Regional Economics
Health Economics	Transitional Economies
Human Resource	Welfare Economics

All submissions have to be original, policy oriented, prospective, and in English. Empirical research articles are most welcomed. However, experimental, theoretical, and empirical case studies will also be considered.

Submission Procedure

Contributors should submit their manuscript in English by October 31, 2020. Manuscripts should be submitted online at the following link: www.editorialmanager.com/ser/default.asp.

Contributors should clearly indicate in the website that the paper is submitted to the Special Issue on China's Economy: Challenges and Development in the Future. There is no submission fee.

All papers must adhere to the "Guideline for Contributors" (available online at <https://www.worldscientific.com/page/ser/submission-guidelines>) of the Singapore Economic Review.
